12 KILLED, 60 MISSING FROM STEAMER

25 Jews, Several British Hurt At Hamburg

WATER HOSES USED TO UNLOAD REFUGEE SHIP

Last Of 'Exodus 1947' Group Forced Ashore At German Port

HAMBURG, Sept. 9—Twenty-five Jewish refugees, including a number of women, were injured today when British troops used force to remove the last fighting Jew aboard the Runnymede Park at Hamburg.

The British turned on high-pressure water hoses in the ship's hold to break resistance, and also arrested several "ring-leaders" before completing the two-day disembarkation of 4,360 refugees from three ships at 2:35 p. m. (7:35 a. m. EST).

A British medical officer, who did not disclose just how the Jews were injured, said that about 15 of them received hospital treatment. Available information indicated that none was injured seriously.

SEVERAL BRITISH soldiers were injured in clashes within the hold of the Runnymede Park after the Jews aboard another ship, the Empire Rival, landed without incident.

Some 40 Jews were manhandled yesterday in the enforced unloading from the Ocean Vigor, 4,140 of the Jews who were turned back from Palestine after the July 18 interception of their Haganah blockade runner, "European Exodus, 1947," formerly the President Warfield.

One Jew named Rosmann, described by the British as the resistance sparkplug of those who fought aboard the Runnymede Park, was arrested and taken individually from the ship before the disembarkation was accomplished.

LIFTING OF OPA IS BLAMED FOR LIVING COSTS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 9—A cabinet member during the Roosevelt administration today blamed the death of OPA for present high living costs in the United States.

Former Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., in Youngstown to make an address as chairman of the United Jewish appeal campaign, asserted: "Just look across the border to Canada where economic controls were retained. The cost of living there is much lower than in the United States."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Opportunity definitely is limited in this country. A Boston shoemaker has only three million dollars to show for years of hard work.

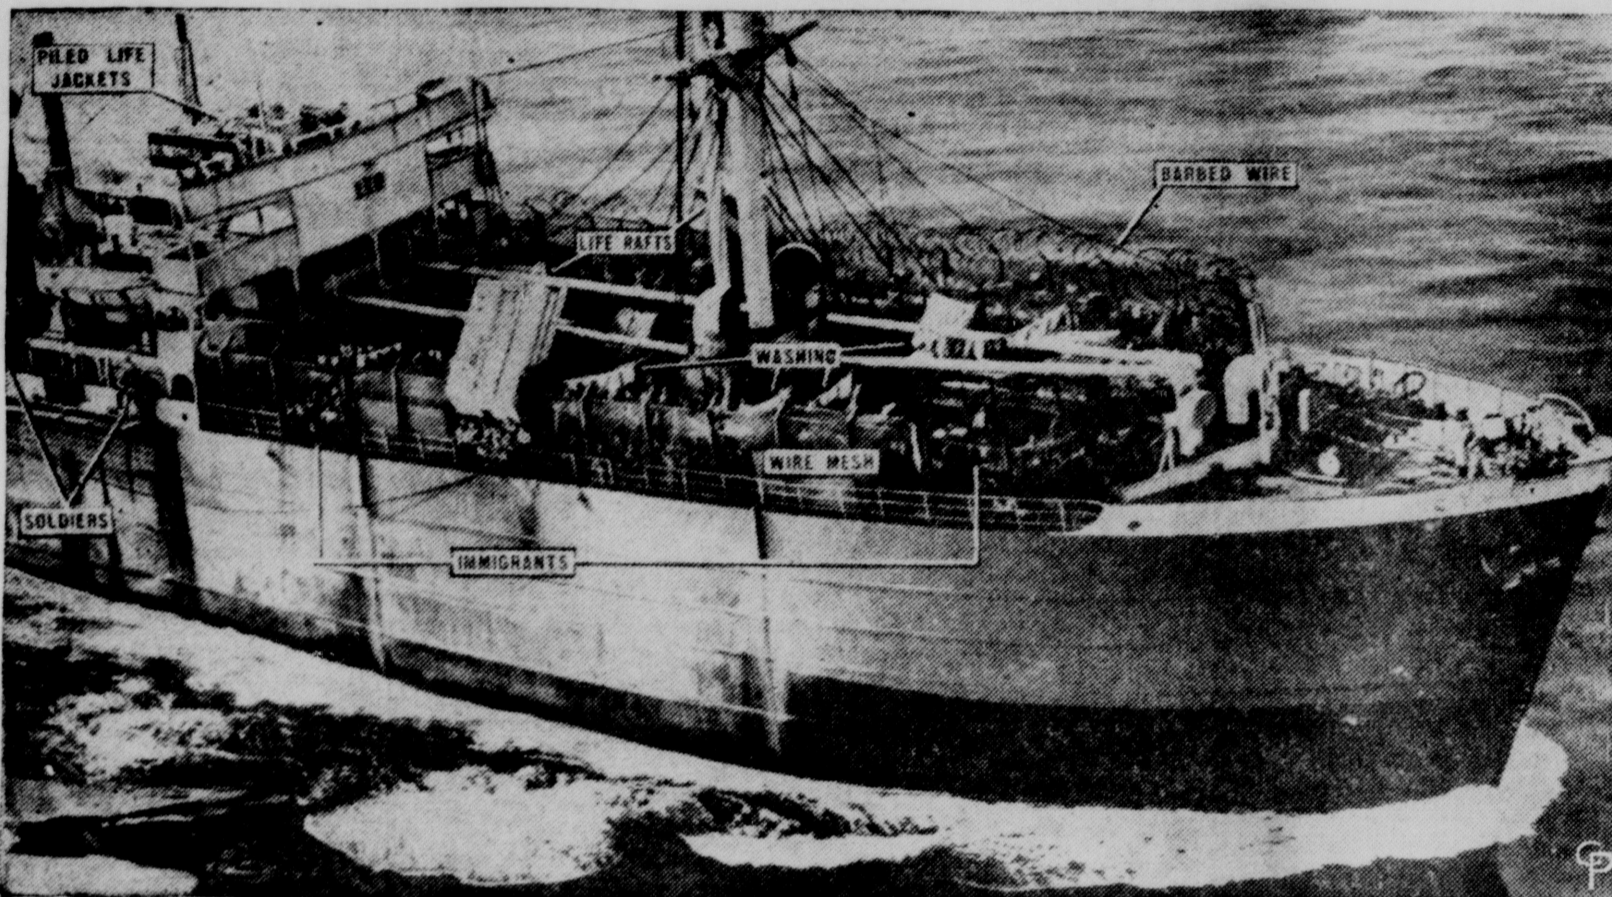

In any country with a decent chance to get rich he would have picked up at least three million five dollars.

But there are signs of change. Bevin wants to redistribute our government gold and Jimmy Roosevelt would buff some of the guilt off our millionaires.

Jimmy says inherited wealth should be redistributed. Jimmy's grandma left a million which so far has not seeped down to the poor but these things take time.

Anyway it shows that Jimmy's heart is in the right place even if the dough has failed to reach there.

And we are grateful to him anyway for the suggestion—there is nothing like "share the wealth" plans for dizzying up a dull month.

HIGH-PRESSURE WATER HOSES were used by British troops to complete the disembarkation of 4,360 Jewish refugees at Hamburg, Germany. Several British soldiers were injured when refugees aboard Runnymede Park, one of the three vessels carrying "Exodus 1947" Jews, tried vainly to keep from leaving the ship. One Jew, claimed by the British to be the leader of the resistance, was arrested and taken ashore before the general disembarkation started.

ELECTION LEADS Solon Issues Ultimatum VFW ACTIVITY To War Contractors

Final Sessions Of Meeting In Cleveland On; War Training Favored

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9—Election of officers was the major item left on the Veterans of Foreign Wars agenda as the 48th encampment began concluding sessions in Cleveland today.

Ray H. Bannaman of Denver and Lyall T. Beggs of Madison, Wis., were expected to be named on first ballots to the respective posts of commander in chief and senior vice commander. Louis E. Starr of Portland, Ore., is retiring VFW head.

Chief contenders for the junior vice commandership were Clyde A. Lewis of Plattsburgh, N. Y., and James M. Hayes, Jr., of Winston-Salem, N. C.

A judge advocate general, surgeon general, chaplain and quartermaster general also were to be elected. Robert B. Handy, Jr., had drawn no opposition in a bid for re-election as quartermaster general.

THE NOMINATED officers were expected to move up without upset in the ladies auxiliary, meeting along with the VFW. Mrs. Dorothy Mann of Detroit was to succeed Mrs. Sally Cannon of Washington as president.

In an extraordinary session last night following a three-hour parade through downtown Cleveland, the VFW passed a resolution asking that congress require six months military training for every boy over 18 years of age.

Commander Starr was hard-pressed at times to maintain order among the some 2,000 (Continued on Page Two)

AMERICAN SHIPS COLLIDE; HURT CREWMEN SAVED

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Coast Guard headquarters in New York reported today that two American ships—the Winfred L. Smith and the Thomas F. Cunningham—collided off Cape Henry, Va., and have been taken in tow by rescue vessels.

Three injured crewmen were removed from the ships and taken to Little Creek, Va., for transfer to the Marine hospital in Norfolk.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Rep. Bender (R) Ohio, issued an ultimatum to war contractors today to return voluntarily to the government several hundred million dollars in overpayments or be hauled before a congressional committee for investigation.

The congressman announced the action at the opening of public hearings on war contracts by a house executive expenditures subcommittee, of which Bender is chairman.

BENDER GAVE the companies, whose names were not disclosed, six weeks in which to make voluntary restitution after receiving from the general accounting office a report listing cases in which overpayments were made in the termination of war contracts.

Bender stated: "If recoveries are not effected during the next six weeks, the subcommittee will summon representatives of the individual companies which have received the largest overpayments to present their reasons for not making a return of money which they have received from the government, which was not properly due them."

Acting Comptroller General Frank L. Yates, informed the house group in the GAO report

CITY SUED FOR $2,000 DAMAGES BY MRS. DAVIS

Damage suit for $2,000 against the city of Circleville was filed by Mrs. Mary Davis, 366 Walnut street, Monday, in Pickaway county common pleas court. She claims to have sustained permanent injuries as a result of stepping from an auto into a depression in front of 362 Logan street.

Mrs. Davis alleges in her petition that on the night of Oct. 10, 1945 she stepped from the car into a "washed out" portion of the street and that the "rut" was about nine feet long and approximately six inches deep. She claims to have suffered a left leg fracture and other hurts.

City officials had previously been notified of the "defective, faulty, and dangerous" condition of the street, according to Mrs. Davis who says that as a result of her injuries she was totally disabled for 14 weeks.

ABANDON HOPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Administration leaders were reported today to have all but abandoned hope for a special session of congress for the purpose of rushing emergency aid to Europe.

that "the contract settlement act makes settlements final and conclusive in the absence of fraud."

SUBCOMMITTEE aides declared that unless deliberate fraud could be proven, in which event the contractor could be prosecuted by the justice department, there apparently was no provision in the law that would require a contractor to return to the treasury any overpayment.

Bender declared that the GAO audit of one and one-half percent of the 318,000 contracts which the government settled at the end of the war for more than eight billion dollars, disclosed evidences of fraud and overpayment amounting to six million dollars.

WORLD POLICE FORCE PROPOSED BY SOVIET UNION

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 9—The United Nations disclosed today that the Soviet Union has proposed an international police force comprised of 12 land divisions, 1,200 war planes and a naval arm lacking in battleships and aircraft carriers.

The Russian estimates were made public along with those previously submitted by the United States, France and Britain. The Soviet offer calls for five or six cruisers and 24 destroyers, in addition to 12 submarines and smaller craft.

Disclosure of the military estimates handed in by the Big Four powers followed immediately after announcement that the security council had postponed the Egyptian U. N. case until 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Launching of Rocket From Carrier Opens New Chapter In Horrors of War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The Navy wrote another chapter in the horrors of war today with the announcement that a captured German V-2 rocket was successfully launched from the carrier Midway.

In the Navy tests, conducted several hundred miles off the Atlantic coast, the V-2 traveled only six miles before exploding.

It was reliably reported that the rocket was set up for maximum range, something like 220 miles. The implication is that the rocket, after a successful launching, malfunctioned in some way and

POLIO EXPECTED TO SLOW DOWN

Gradual Decrease In Number Of Cases Predicted By Health Director

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—A gradual decrease in the number of new cases of infantile paralysis in Ohio was predicted today by state health director John D. Porterfield, III.

Porterfield said that with cooler temperatures the current outbreak of polio which today reached a total of 414 reported cases in the state—33 more than on the same date last year—should diminish.

However, the health director noted that the weather has been unseasonal most of the Spring and Summer and a continuation of hot weather might prolong the season.

BOTH PORTERFIELD and Dr. P. L. Harris, the department's communicable diseases chief, reiterated their warnings issued earlier that children should be kept out of crowds and that flies should be eliminated by use of DDT or some other such substance.

Both officials added that nose, throat and dental operations should be postponed if possible until the end of the polio season, and that unnecessary travel and visiting should be foregone.

Harris pointed out that older people are not likely to transmit the disease. He said he had (Continued on Page Two) the liquid fuels used as propellants exploded.

EVEN IF the flight of the rocket itself was not successful, the launching from a carrier opened up innumerable possibilities for future war.

The V-2 is the most successful rocket fired to date, although more efficient and deadlier missiles undoubtedly will follow if they are not already under construction. An armed V-2 travels at supersonic speed, weighs more than 28,000 pounds, and carries several tons of high explosive in the warhead.

ISLAND QUEEN HIT BY BLAST AT PITTSBURGH

Survivor Says 92 Aboard When Explosion Rocks River Boat

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9—Twelve men were believed dead and 60 others missing today when an Ohio river excursion boat, the Island Queen, exploded at its dock in Pittsburgh.

Jack O'Berry, a member of the crew, said he believed the 60 missing also were dead. He said:

"I was on the gangplank. There were 92 aboard. I counted those I saw in the water and if the others were on board, I figured they are dead. I saw two women and eight men on the porch. I didn't see them after the explosion."

SO FIERCE was the heat generated by the flames on the dock that crowds of spectators could feel it from a distance of two blocks.

Extra police details were rushed to the scene of the tragedy to speed the entry of fire units and ambulances throughout the city.

Dock workers on the river front said the tragedy was one of the worst they had ever witnessed along the piers. Few held any hope for the missing persons believed trapped in the inferno, or for those reported hurled into the waters which were coated with burning oil and wreckage.

All available police and firemen were rushed to the scene. The ship was enveloped in flames.

John Carmen, 22, a cashier, of Cincinnati, said he had walked off the vessel a few seconds before the explosion occurred.

Carmen said he believed the blast was caused by oil drums exploding in the ship's engine room.

RECORD GRAIN PRICES PAID; CORN TO $2.60

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—New record highs and seasonal peaks for grains were the rule today in the wake of a sustained wave of buying on the Chicago board of trade.

July wheat soared the allowable 10-cent limit, while May corn was up the allowable 8-cent limit.

November and March soybean futures ran the gamut of the allowable 8-cent limit for the fourth successive.

The September wheat delivery established a new all-time high of $2.72 a bushel, up 7 3/4 cents from yesterday's close.

September corn rose seven cents to $2.60 a bushel, an all-time record for any corn future. The highest recorded price paid for oats also was listed—$1.19 1/4 a bushel, up about four cents from the close yesterday.

July wheat brought $2.47 1/2 a bushel. Soybeans sold up to $3.16 for the March future.

RAILROADS SEE LARGEST DEFICIT IN HISTORY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The nation's railroads told the interstate commerce commission today that they will operate "in the red" next year with the largest deficit in railroad history unless their request for a 27 percent over-all average freight rate increase is granted.

Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, economist for the Association of American Railroads, testified at an ICC hearing on the proposed rate boost that on the basis of present rates and anticipated traffic the railroads' net income will show a 240 million dollar deficit next year.

ISLAND QUEEN HIT BY BLAST AT PITTSBURGH

Survivor Says 92 Aboard When Explosion Rocks River Boat

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9—Twelve men were believed dead and 60 others missing today when an Ohio river excursion boat, the Island Queen, exploded at its dock in Pittsburgh.

Jack O'Berry, a member of the crew, said he believed the 60 missing also were dead.

He said: "I was on the gangplank. There were 92 aboard. I counted those I saw in the water and if the others were on board, I figured they are dead. I saw two women and eight men on the porch. I didn't see them after the explosion."

SO FIERCE was the heat generated by the flames on the dock that crowds of spectators could feel it from a distance of two blocks.

Extra police details were rushed to the scene of the tragedy to speed the entry of fire units and ambulances throughout the city.

Dock workers on the river front said the tragedy was one of the worst they had ever witnessed along the piers. Few held any hope for the missing persons believed trapped in the inferno, or for those reported hurled into the waters which were coated with burning oil and wreckage.

All available police and firemen were rushed to the scene. The ship was enveloped in flames.

John Carmen, 22, a cashier, of Cincinnati, said he had walked off the vessel a few seconds before the explosion occurred.

Carmen said he believed the blast was caused by oil drums exploding in the ship's engine room.

RECORD GRAIN PRICES PAID; CORN TO $2.60

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—New record highs and seasonal peaks for grains were the rule today in the wake of a sustained wave of buying on the Chicago board of trade.

July wheat soared the allowable 10-cent limit, while May corn was up the allowable 8-cent limit.

November and March soybean futures ran the gamut of the allowable 8-cent limit for the fourth successive.

The September wheat delivery established a new all-time high of $2.72 a bushel, up 7 3/4 cents from yesterday's close.

September corn rose seven cents to $2.60 a bushel, an all-time record for any corn future.

The highest recorded price paid for oats also was listed—$1.19 1/4 a bushel, up about four cents from the close yesterday.

July wheat brought $2.47 1/2 a bushel.

Soybeans sold up to $3.16 for the March future.

RAILROADS SEE LARGEST DEFICIT IN HISTORY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The nation's railroads told the interstate commerce commission today that they will operate "in the red" next year with the largest deficit in railroad history unless their request for a 27 percent over-all average freight rate increase is granted.

Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, economist for the Association of American Railroads, testified at an ICC hearing on the proposed rate boost that on the basis of present rates and anticipated traffic the railroads' net income will show a 240 million dollar deficit next year.

NICARAGUA REVOLT ON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The state department today received sketchy reports of new uprisings in Nicaragua.

WATER HOSES USED TO UNLOAD REFUGEE SHIP

(Continued from Page One) along both children and adults from the ship to shore. At least 11 older Jews, kicking and shouting curses, forcibly were carried down the gangplank.

Hundreds of Jews, eyes filled with hatred, lined the windows of the trains as they pulled out for Poffendorf and Amstut Internment camps near Lubbeck.

The British government is negotiating "technical detail" with the French government whereby the Jews eventually will be accepted back in France, whence they sailed for Palestine two months ago. But the French will not take them unless they go voluntarily.

A KNOT OF Jews aboard the Runnymede Park defied two orders of the British to land peacefully. The Jews barricaded themselves in the hold.

British then turned the water hoses into the hold, and the angered cries of the Jews could be heard from the docks.

Personally directed by Maj. Gen. George Surtees, reinforced British troops—some wearing anti-gas eyeshields—boarded the ship to remove the immigrants by force.

The stubborn refusal of the Jews to leave the hold was attributed to the leadership of one man "who rules with an iron rod."

Vaughn Berry, commander of the Hamburg area, who labeled the operation "a sorry business now," described the leader as one who has been a fanatical Zionist for 20 years.

Berry said that the refugees had broken down all the ladders leading from the hold.

WHEN A HALF dozen fire hoses began pumping floods of water into the hold, newsmen on the deck could hear howls and screams mingled with the swishing of the water.

Above the uproar could be heard defiant voices singing the Zionist hymn: "Let the Hands of Our Brethren be Strengthened."

(At one time during the operation, Reuters reported, several hundred Hamburg Jews tried to break through the British cordon to reach the disembarkation area. They were driven back outside the dock area, however, before they could reach any of their compatriots.)

POLIO EXPECTED TO SLOW DOWN

talked yesterday with Martins Ferry health commissioner E. L. Scheehle, who was disturbed over the fact that the son of the Martins Ferry high school football coach Fred Thomas, had contracted polio over the weekend.

Harris said that he had explained to Scheehle that under the conditions as polio researchers now know them it should be all right for Thomas to continue his duties since he would not be in close contact with his charges. He said he had advised Scheehle to consult with the board of education and then issue a public statement on the decision.

THE CURRENT wave in Ohio does not appear to be so serious as in earlier years. The vital statistics division of the health department recorded only three fatal cases through June 30.

Division Chief W. H. Veigel pointed out, however, that the majority of fatalities occur in October and November. The total for the entire year of 1946 was 56 fatal cases. Twenty-nine were recorded in 1945 and 88 in 1944, the peak in recent years.

CHECK FORGERY ADMITTED BY F. A. CHILCOTE

Francis A. Chilcote, 29, Route 1, Laurelville, was in the Pickaway county jail in default of $1,000 bond, Tuesday, awaiting grand jury action on a forgery charge to which he pleaded guilty Monday night before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland.

The affidavit against Chilcote was filed by Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious who arrested Chilcote, Saturday, at Sugargrove. The affidavit charged that Chilcote passed a forged $16 check at the Given Oil company, Circleville, and that the check was drawn on the First National Bank, Circleville.

Deputy Pontious said Chilcote is also wanted by Ross county authorities on a charge of passing a forged $12 check at the Moore's store at Chillicothe. The deputy also declared that his investigation had disclosed that Chilcote passed a $35 check, with insufficient funds, at the Jim Brown store in Circleville, a $10 worthless check at the Dixon store at Amanda, and that at the Jim Brown store at Lancaster the Laurelville area man recently bought a washing machine, agreed to make a $71 down payment, then presented a $75 check, with insufficient funds, and received $4 in change.

MOTORIST FINED

Harry C. Schull, Circleville, was fined $10 and costs Monday night by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland on a charge of failure to stop his motor vehicle before entering upon a highway. State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour declared Mr. Schull drove onto U. S. Route 22 by "cutting through" a filling station at the intersection of State Route 104.

CONTRACT ACT HIT

Commander Starr pointed to purchase of a $500,000 office building in Kansas City as one reason for the deficit and added that expenditures had been curtailed as soon as the deficit became evident. He also said loss of 400,000 members, although gradually being made up, had some effect on the organization's treasury.

SPECIAL VOTING FIRST TEST ON U. S. LABOR LAW

Pennsylvania Election Fight
Over Taft-Hartley
Bill Watched

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—A special congressional election today in Pennsylvania provides the first major test of labor's political power and its chances for success in a drive to repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

The latter campaign will, of course, not get under way in full force until next year, but today's balloting in Pennsylvania's eighth district will furnish a small-scale preview of '48.

Candidates are Republican Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, speaker of the state house of representatives, and Democrat Philip Storch, president of the CIO-Allentown newspaper guild, an ex-Marine and a newcomer to politics.

LABOR, WHICH has made defeat of Taft-Hartley act sponsors and repeal of the statute its major objectives for 1948, found the issue clearly drawn in the Pennsylvania voting to fill out the unexpired term of the late congressman Charles L. Gerlach, Republican.

CIO, AFL and railroad unions rallied to the support of the 36-year-old Storch who stated that "I am for repeal of the Taft-Hartley bill and I am against everything it stands for."

Lichtenwalter, only a year older than his opponent, is one of the state's most successful young politicians and helped enact Pennsylvania's own version of the Taft-Hartley law in the state legislature.

'BUILD ON ROCK' SPEAKER'S TOPIC FOR KIWANIANS

M. E. Sensenbrenner, Columbus, former Circleville resident, told members of the Kiwanis Club Monday evening to "build on a rock" in doing good work in their home community.

The speaker compared the work of the Kiwanis club and church, pointing out the similarity of their objectives. "Being a Christian is the greatest thing in life," he declared and stated that true Christians and Kiwanians must "serve, suffer and sacrifice." He urged his listeners to "build a better world by making Circleville a good place for boys and girls, giving them a chance to grow into good citizens. He said that "we must get back to the faith of our fathers, make this a nation of homes believing in God."

Mr. Sensenbrenner stated we "must build a bridge over racial barriers and over religious and denominational barriers. We cannot stand aloof while others are hungry or suffering but must help them. We must share our freedom with all."

Guests at the meeting were Ed Sensenbrenner, father of the speaker; Robert Mitten, Akron, brother-in-law of C. Ray Barnhart; Herb Frey, new manager of Cussins and Fearn, and high school coaches, Steve Brudzinski and Tommy Bennett.

OHIO CAPITAL SAID TO BE ON 'SPUR TRACK'

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—A Columbus airport commission member charged today that the Ohio capital has been shunted onto a "spur track" by civil aeronautics board refusal of airlines applications to operate through the city.

Columbus has sought direct north-south service between Detroit and Miami, Fla.

Applications of Eastern Airlines, Delta Airlines, Great Lakes Airlines, Inc., and Trans-Ohio Airlines, Inc., were all turned down by the Cab. The latter two companies sought to establish an Ohio feeder system with Columbus as its hub.

Commission Chairman John P. Biehn pointed out that, while inclusion on a segment of a TWA route between Toledo and Dayton will give Columbus direct service, it will be much less extensive than desired.

PATTERN FOR UNION

SECRETARY of State Marshall and Senator Vandenberg returned from the conference at Rio very well satisfied with the results there attained. All the nations had agreed to a pact for hemisphere defense which would bring all to the aid of any one which might be attacked either from within or without.

They made plain that this action of group meeting and group alliance did not in any sense bypass or conflict with the United Nations. They laid stress on the fact that such "regional arrangements" were provided for by the United Nations, and making them strengthened the United Nations.

Moreover, they were especially keen on the fact that decisions in the group were to be made by a two-thirds vote. No one nation could block action desired and approved by the others.

There are possibilities of amending the charter and rules by which the United Nations functions, just as there are for amending the Constitution of the United States. No new charter can be expected to work well indefinitely on its first plan. Experiments in actual functioning have to be made. The Constitution requires approval of an amendment by three-fourths of the states. This is more than a two-thirds vote, but, again, no one state can block generally approved action.

Some amendment of the UN rules will doubtless be necessary. Marshall and Vandenberg believe the Rio pact sets a pattern for union.

BOMBS FOR HEALTH

FOR THE first time, elements of the atomic bomb will be shared by the United States for international use against disease. A telegram to the International Cancer Research Congress at its recent gathering in St. Louis announced the new policy which Dr. E. V. Cowdry, the congress president, said would be a "decisive step in the world's effort to wipe out cancer." From Ottawa came a similar announcement making radioactive materials from the Ontario atomic energy research plant available to qualified clinicians in Canada.

The American Atomic Energy Commission added that foreigners using the materials will be required to make semi-annual progress reports and to open their laboratories to qualified visitors from other nations. Foreign governments must also give assurance that the atomic ingredients are being used only for medical purposes.

This is the first step toward atom peace. The twentieth century's deadliest weapon and the world's newest knowledge is to be turned from destruction to the service of mankind. Surely this is one of the important news items of 1947.

U. S., Britain May Yet Stay of Execution for Petkov, Agrarian Chief

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Despite the curt Russian rejection of Anglo-American efforts to save the life of Bulgarian political leader Nikola Petkov, there still remains a good chance that future events will bring about a mitigation of his death sentence.

Petkov, leader of the Bulgarian agrarian party, which recently was outlawed for its opposition to the Communist-inspired majority group in the parliament, has a several months stay of execution while his appeal is being considered under Bulgarian law.

The General Assembly of the United Nations meets next month, in ample time to bring pressure to bear against Bulgaria to keep her from carrying out the death sentence against Petkov. In the meantime, it can be expected that the United States and Britain will maintain unremitting pressure on the Bulgarian government because of its action.

Russia was able to block direct Anglo-American action in the case only because of the requirement of unanimity of the three great powers in dealing with the situation in Bulgaria through the Allied Control Commission.

Certainly, pending clarification of the Petkov incident, the Bulgarian government faces continuing economic sanctions by the two western powers. In the event of Petkov's eventual execution, long-time reprisals can be expected in the economic and diplomatic fields.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The unions are railing the new national labor relations board as a tyrannical oppressor, designing to enslave them—but actually they have control of the board.

A fair summation of the setup there would list three of the five members likely to be very pro-labor on a showdown. Union margin would be 3 to 2. Leaning on the labor side in basic background are Paul Herzog, the old chairman, John Houston, of the old board, and Abe Murdock. Another hold-over, James J. Reynold, and a new man, J. Copeland Gray, are classified as likely to be the minority of two on a straightout issue.

The Republicans are suspicious of the kind of enforcement into which their new reform law might trend. They are saying little or nothing about this, being quite satisfied with initial steps taken, but their fear is well grounded and real. It is merely in abeyance to ascertain if it is justified.

Yet if anything is done to enslave any unions, it will be done by a facially apparent pro-union board.

A tighter question, however, is how well the legally well-endowed new general counsel, Robert Denham, performs. He has enough law behind him apparently, has supervision directly over district offices of the board, and will initiate and follow through on all the prosecuting of cases.

In such a position he has the opportunity to be wise and fair—or he might slip into unnecessary trouble by either being too harsh or too easy on either side, thus nullifying the chance the law has. Against him stands the fifth circuit court decision charging him with "false pretense" and unfairness in the Atlas pipeline case.

His administration came in under good auspices. He and his associates recognized they had a good chance to get away to a flying start if they could promptly end the jurisdictional strikes of the film workers in Hollywood. These involved AFL unions and the new law is full of authority against jurisdictional strikes. Boardmen recognized that if they could use their new authority to settle these long strikes — strikes which have worked against all the unions involved, causing bloody heads and unemployment—their best beginning could thus be launched. On the quiet, they started after that situation first.

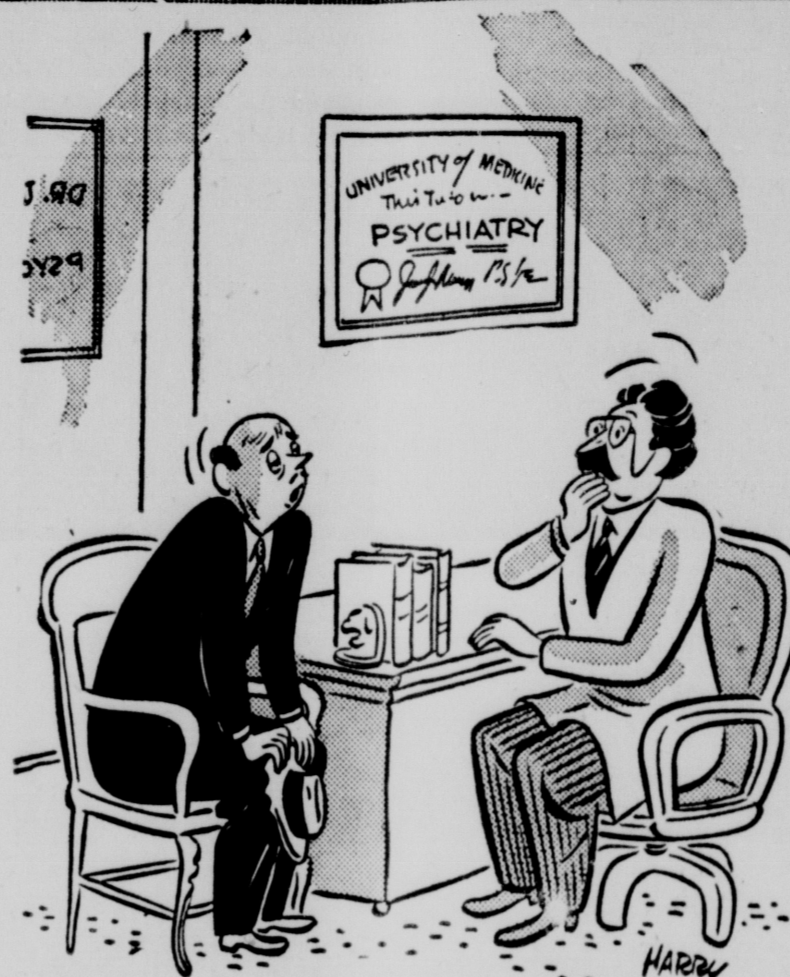

Frankly, no one around here knows the answer to these sensitive questions as to how the situation will turn. Everyone hopes there will be good, sound administration, but concedes the board will have to resist tremendous influences and fight continuously to get what is wanted.

All Republicanism (and management as well) is now alive to the general ignorance of the people and workers with provisions of the new law. Even the Republican national committee headquarters has lately been taking steps to advertise the features of the act. However, not enough is being done and the unions still plainly are getting the best of publicity.

A Formerly Incurable Ear Disease Aided by Operation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN the past when patients suffering from the ear disease known as otosclerosis came to the doctor for help, he could only shake his head sadly and explain that medicine could do nothing to arrest the progress of their deafness.

Recently, however, surgery has found an answer to this problem in the form of a delicate operation which has been of benefit to many patients.

Disease of the Bone

Otosclerosis is really a disease of the bone, in which the dense bony capsule surrounding the internal ear is replaced by an overgrowth of soft, spongy bone. As this spongy growth spreads, it interferes with the movement of the tiny bones in the middle ear which ordinarily transmit sound waves.

Otosclerosis occurs twice as often in women as in men. The first symptoms are often noticed during the late teens. However, the condition may come on gradually, so that deafness may be present for some time before it is noticed by the patient. In a considerable number of cases, the deafness is not noticed before the age of twenty to thirty years, or even later. It would appear that the disease occurs much more often in those of fair complexion than in those who are darker.

Deafness Progresses

The spread with which the deafness progresses also varies to a great extent. Ringing in the ears or head noises are usually present. Many of the patients do not find these noises troublesome except when they are tired or worried. Now and then, a patient may also complain of some dizziness.

There are many forms of treatment for otosclerosis, and temporary improvement has resulted in some few instances. Hearing aids have been of great help to these patients and have enabled many of them to hear much better.

An Operation

designed to break through the barrier of bone which prevented sounds from reaching the innermost part of the ear. Apparently, this operation, known as fenestration, has brought about a restoration of hearing in many patients with otosclerosis.

It is, however, a delicate operation calling for special equipment and special experience. For instance, the structures operated upon are so small that most of the surgeons doing the fenestration operation use a special binocular microscope to do their work. Thus, it is apparent that satisfactory results can be obtained only by those who have had special training to develop the necessary skill and judgment.

If Nerve Is Affected

If the nerve of hearing has been affected to any great extent, the operative treatment for otosclerosis will not help. Hence, before any patient with otosclerosis is treated surgically, his hearing must be carefully studied to be sure that there is sufficient hearing power remaining to allow him to benefit from the operation.

Fortunately the operation is not a dangerous one. The risk to life is negligible, and infection rarely occurs. It is usually advisable to operate on the most badly affected ear first. If it turns out that the hearing in this ear is improved, the possibility of operating on the other ear at a later date may be considered.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. E. C.: Often when I wake up in the morning my right hand is numb. What causes this?

Answer: Numbness in the hand may come from many conditions, such as poor circulation, nerve damage, muscle inflammation, and inflammation of the joints. Arthritis of the upper part of the spine may be responsible. I would suggest an investigation by a neurologist and orthopedic specialist to determine just what is wrong so that proper treatment may be carried out.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

NORAH AND one of the other girls had had their heads together in close consultation, and now they straightened, smiling at Gail, and the girl said pleasantly, "I'm Jane Morrow, Gail. I'd like to give a party for you."

"Thank you—that's very nice of you," said Gail sincerely. Jane smiled at her.

"I'd love it," she said. "My place tomorrow afternoon. Okay, Norah? You haven't made any other plans?"

"No. Gail only arrived on Wednesday and you know what tobacco plants are," Norah answered.

"And how we know!" mourned Jabe feelingly. "Nice little dollar bills that grow on stems, but have to be planted by hand, with more back breaking—and then come the worms."

"Will you hush!" ordered Anne sternly. "I want to give a party for Gail, too."

"Of course," said another girl. "We all do, but tomorrow we'll get our heads together and plan our dates so we won't conflict. And now, I have to scram. Only I refuse to leave until the rest of you do. I refuse to be torn to bits behind my back by my dearest and nearest friends. So let's break it up, shall we?"

They stared at her, owl-eyed. "Why, darling," breathed Anne, shocked and hurt. "You don't think we'd talk about you?"

"Of course not," answered the girl pleasantly. "No more we'd talk about you if you left first!"

Jabe looked around the circle and shook his head sadly.

"Women!" he sighed in the tone of one who could never hope to understand the subject. "Why are women such cats? Why, it would never occur to us fellows to gossip about each other—though I have heard that Joe Wayne got in a jam the last time he went to Atlanta. Anybody hear the dreadful details?"

"But of course men never gossip," scoffed Anne and rose. "Come on, let's go prowl the dime store, gals, and leave this gossip business to experts."

When the girls met Charles and Kate at 4 o'clock, Gail had the happy feeling that she had been accepted. And it was funny that the feeling should be a happy one.

She had been accepted without question by far more fashionable and worldly groups; but somehow, meeting these girls and boys here in this little town, knowing that they liked her and welcomed her, gave her a warm contentment that was different. They had not been impressed either by her background or her clothes or her sophistication; at first they had accepted her simply as Norah's friend, but by the time the afternoon was over they had made her feel one of themselves. Their courtesy had been swift, unerring, not needing to be considered or weighed or withheld. Their hospi-talities had been warm and instant. Charles, looking at her happy face, said fondly, "Did you have fun, chick?"

"Lots of fun, Father," she answered swiftly. "Such nice people." "She was an instantaneous hit," Norah said cheerfully. "But then, I knew she would be—she's nice people herself!"

Kate smiled and Charles beamed. Only Greg looked cold and contemptuous.

Driving back to the farm, Norah chattered and Kate answered her with bits of news and friendly gossip. It was plain to see that this high-spirited afternoon in town was the highlight of their busy, crowded week. Charles and Greg carried on a fragmentary conversation, entirely separated from the women's chatter, and Gail could relax happily. After all, she told herself, what difference did it make that Greg held her in such contempt? Other people liked her and accepted her at face value, and if Greg wanted to be a sour-faced, grumpy enemy, why worry about him?

As if her thoughts had called to him, he turned his head and looked at her. Gail met the direct look with her chin up, her eyes as cold and frosty as his own, for the first time not quailing beneath the flash of contempt and dislike in his eyes. She thought he looked a little surprised, but she couldn't be sure; and anyway, it didn't matter. For the first time in her life she felt secure in her welcome. Until now she had never quite realized the uneasiness of not being sure that she was wanted.

The chores were done and supper disposed of and they all trailed upstairs to bed, happily tired from the afternoon's activities. It was far earlier than Gail was accustomed to go to bed, but out here in the country the fresh air and the exercise made one sleepy earlier than the crowded, hectic life that she had always known.

She got ready for bed, blew out the lamp, and stood for a moment at the window, savoring the moon-silvered magic of the night. The stillness was broken only by the cheerful croaking of frogs and the faint, indefinable stirring of tiny creatures of the night.

She turned at last to go back to the bed, and suddenly was still. For softly and indistinctly, she heard a sound that caught her up to a momentary uneasiness. Puzzled, she strained her ears. The sound came from the room next door—Norah's room. Across the wide hall there was complete silence from the big room at the head of the stairs that was Charles' and Kate's; and opposite Gail's room was Greg's room. No, the small, muffled sound came from Norah's room, and fearful that Norah might be ill, Gail stepped down to the wall and raised her hand to tap softly. The old wooden wall was thin, and with her hand upraised she heard the sound more clearly—and was still again, her eyes widening, the upraised hand clenching and dropping to her side without touching the wall.

For now she recognized that sound, the sound of muffled, heart-broken sobbing. Norah, who had been so gay and lively all day, was weeping her heart out in the stillness and frightening loneliness of the night.

Gail's first instinct was to go to Norah, and then she held herself back. There was something almost terrifying about the broken sobbing, the desolate, heart-wrenching grief that had sought the dark shelter of the lonely night, and Gail knew that she dared not intrude on Norah's privacy, even to try to share her grief. For grief was not to be shared.

She went to bed at last, to lie staring into the darkness. She was deeply fond of Norah. She was worried for her grief, and she was puzzled. She remembered again that swift exchange between Norah and Greg in the station way this afternoon. The way Norah had started gayly. "The man I marry—" and had broken off, her eyes wide and tearless, her red undergarments caught between her teeth, and the way Greg had dropped a hand on hers that were suddenly tense in her lap and had said under his breath, "Stiff upper lip, baby—it'll be all right." And again she could see the almost passionate gratitude in Norah's eyes as she found her way back to composure.

And now Norah, hidden in the lonely darkness of her room, wept her heart out. Why? Gail wondered, and knew there was no way she could find out. She dared not invade Norah's private thoughts, even with the best possible intentions.

When Gail came downstairs Sunday morning, the others were before her and breakfast was about to begin. Charles and Greg had attended to the animals, and breakfast was an unaccustomedly leisurely meal. Gail stole a swift glance at Norah, but there were no evidences of last night's lonely sobbing, and her manner was gay and brisk as usual.

After breakfast, when the house was neat and tidy, they all dressed and went to church. To a little country church, freshly painted and standing in a beautiful pine grove on a side road away from the highway. Beside the church there was the cemetery, neat and dignified despite the poverty of the small, shabby stones.

An earnest, ruddy-faced man in neat dark clothes, his big grained hands horny with evidence of the hardest toil, preached a sermon that was disarmingly simple, yet filled with the vigor of his deep conviction that he spoke the truth. Afterward there were little groups "visiting," and invitations to "come and have dinner with us" were passed about, and eventually the four members of Gail's family withdrew and returned to the house.

cratic National Chairman Robert Hannegan seemed pretty well set, there's a faint chance that Hannegan will refuse to obey the advice of his physicians and quit.

Highly-placed Democratic sources say that Hannegan "is just bull-headed enough" to stay on as chairman if he gets "his Irish up." Also, they claim that the chances are even greater that Hannegan will remain as postmaster general.

However, the party spokesmen said that there's no doubt that President Truman could persuade Hannegan to quit where even physicians fail.

If Hannegan resigns, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson is a good bet to succeed him, but there are other possibilities. One is former Rep. Joseph Casey (D.), Mass., now in Washington, another is Rhode Island's Senator J. Howard McGrath, a political-wise young legislator.

There are those who are stringing along with the idea that young Gael Sullivan, who has been running the party as Democratic executive director in Hannegan's absence, might be elevated to the chairmanship.

Most sources doubt the selection of Sullivan, but some party men say the Democrats "could do worse" despite Sullivan's "spanking" by the White House after his ill-timed appeal for GOP support of the Greek aid program.

● GENERAL LEE'S DEFENDER—A new twist in the charges against Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commander of the Mediterranean theater, has brought an uproar from the leading service publication, Armed Forces.

The magazine lashed out strongly at the statement by a colonel under Lee's command that charges leveled against the general might have been "Communist inspired."

Lee has been charged with imposing undue hardships on GIs while he himself lived in luxury. The Army is investigating the charges.

The publication bitterly criticized the colonel, who is unnamed, and said that he is "doing far more to 'knock down' the Army" than the charges against Lee.

Armed Forces declared that individuals such as the colonel, are "a blistering indictment" of commanding officers and "gratuitously divert the attention of the public from the work of Communists."

A Formerly Incurable Ear Disease Aided by Operation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN the past when patients suffering from the ear disease known as otosclerosis came to the doctor for help, he could only shake his head sadly and explain that medicine could do nothing to arrest the progress of their deafness.

Recently, however, surgery has found an answer to this problem in the form of a delicate operation which has been of benefit to many patients.

Disease of the Bone

Otosclerosis is really a disease of the bone, in which the dense bony capsule surrounding the internal ear is replaced by an overgrowth of soft, spongy bone. As this spongy growth spreads, it interferes with the movement of the tiny bones in the middle ear which ordinarily transmit sound waves.

Otosclerosis occurs twice as often in women as in men. The first symptoms are often noticed during the teens. However, the condition may come on gradually so that deafness may be present for some time before it is noticed by the patient. In a considerable number of cases, the deafness is not noticed before the age of twenty to thirty years, or even later. It would appear that the disease occurs much more often in those of fair complexion than in those who are darker.

Deafness Progresses

The spread with which the deafness progresses also varies to a great extent. Ringing in the ears or head noises are usually present. Many of the patients do not find these noises troublesome except when they are tired or worried. Now and then, a patient may also complain of some dizziness.

There are many forms of treatment for otosclerosis, and temporary improvement has resulted in some few instances. Hearing aids have been of great help to these patients and have enabled many of them to hear much better.

An Operation

designed to break through the barrier of bone which prevented sounds from reaching the innermost part of the ear. Apparently, this operation, known as fenestration, has brought about a restoration of hearing in many patients with otosclerosis.

It is, however, a delicate operation calling for special equipment and special experience. For instance, the structures operated upon are so small that most of the surgeons doing the fenestration operation use a special binocular microscope to do their work. Thus, it is apparent that satisfactory results can be obtained only by those who have had special training to develop the necessary skill and judgment.

If Nerve Is Affected

If the nerve of hearing has been affected to any great extent, the operative treatment for otosclerosis will not help. Hence, before any patient with otosclerosis is treated surgically, his hearing must be carefully studied to be sure that there is sufficient hearing power remaining to allow him to benefit from the operation.

Fortunately the operation is not a dangerous one. The risk to life is negligible, and infection rarely occurs. It is usually advisable to operate on the most badly affected ear first. If it turns out that the hearing in this ear is improved, the possibility of operating on the other ear at a later date may be considered.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. E. C.: Often when I wake up in the morning my right hand is numb. What causes this?

Answer: Numbness in the hand may come from many conditions, such as poor circulation, nerve damage, muscle inflammation, and inflammation of the joints. Arthritis of the upper part of the spine may be responsible. I would suggest an investigation by a neurologist and orthopedic specialist to determine just what is wrong so that proper treatment may be carried out.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
NORAH AND one of the other girls had their heads together in close consultation, and now they stood straight, smiling at Gail, and the girl said pleasantly, "I'm Jane Morrow, Gail. I'd like to give a party for you."

"Thank you—that's very nice of you," said Gail sincerely. Jane smiled at her.

"I'd love it," she said. "My place tomorrow afternoon. Okay, Norah? You haven't made any other plans?"

"No, Gail only arrived on Wednesday and you know what tobacco plants are," Norah answered.

"And how we know!" mourned Jane feelingly. "Nice little dollar bills that grow on stems, but have to be planted by hand, with more back breaking—and then come the worms."

"Will you hush!" ordered Anne sternly. "I want to give a party for Gail, too."

"Of course," said another girl. "We all do, but tomorrow we'll get our heads together and plan our dates so we won't conflict. And now, I have to scram. Only I refuse to leave until the rest of you, I refuse to be torn to bits behind my back by my dearest and nearest friends. So let's break it up, shall we?"

They stared at her, owl-eyed.

"Why, darling," breathed Anne, shocked and hurt. "You don't think we'd talk about you?"

"Of course not," answered the girl pleasantly. "No more than we'd talk about you if you left first!"

Jane looked around the circle and shook her head sadly.

"Women!" he sighed in the tone of one who could never hope to understand the subject. "Why are women such cats? Why, it would never occur to us fellows to gossip about each other—though I have heard that Joe Wayne got in a jam the last time he went to Atlanta. Anybody hear the dreadful details?"

"But of course men never gossip," scoffed Anne and rose. "Come on, let's go prove the dime store, gals, and leave this gossip business to experts."

When the girls met Charles and Kate at 4 o'clock, Gail had the happy feeling that she had been accepted. And it was funny that the feeling should be a happy one.

She had been accepted without question by far more fashionable and worldly groups; but somehow, meeting these girls and boys here in this little town, knowing that they liked her and welcomed her, gave her a warm contentment that was different. They had not been impressed either by her background or her clothes or her sophistication; at first they had accepted her simply as Norah's friend, but by the time the afternoon was over they had made her feel one of themselves. Their courtesy had been swift, unerring, not needing to be considered or weighed or withheld. Their hospi-

ality had been warm and instant. Charles, looking at her happy face, said fondly, "Did you have fun, chick?"

"Lots of fun, Father," she answered swiftly. "Such nice people. She was an instantaneous hit," Norah said cheerfully. "But then, I knew she would be—she's nice people herself!"

Kate smiled and Charles beamed. Only Greg looked cold and contemptuous.

Driving back to the farm, Norah chattered and Kate answered her with bits of news and friendly gossip. It was plain to see that this weekly afternoon in town was the highlight of their busy, crowded week. Charles and Greg carried on a fragmentary conversation, entirely separated from the women's chatter, and Gail could relax happily. After all, she told herself, what difference did it make that Greg held her in such contempt? Other people liked her and accepted her at face value, and if Greg wanted to be a sour-faced, grim-faced enemy, why worry about him?

As if her thoughts had called to him, he turned his head and looked at her. Gail met the direct look with her chin up, her eyes as cold and frosty as his own, for the first time not quailing beneath the flash of contempt and dislike in his eyes. She thought he looked a little surprised, but she couldn't be sure; and anyway, it didn't matter. For the first time in her life she felt secure in her welcome. Until now she had never quite realized the uneasiness of not being sure that she was wanted.

The chores were done and supper disposed of and they all trailed upstairs to bed, happily tired from the afternoon's activities. It was far earlier than Gail was accustomed to go to bed, but out here in the country the fresh air and the exercise made one sleepy earlier than the crowded, hectic life that she had always known.

She got ready for bed, blew out the lamp, and stood for a moment at the window, savoring the moon-silvered magic of the night. The stillness was broken only by the cheerful croaking of frogs and the faint, indefinable stirring of tiny creatures of the night.

She turned at last to go back to the bed, and suddenly she was still. For softly and indistinctly, she heard a sound that caught her up to a momentary uneasiness. Puzzled, she strained her ears. The sound came from the room next door—Norah's room. Across the wide hall there was complete silence from the big room at the head of the stairs that was Charles' and Kate's; and opposite Gail's room was Greg's room. No, the small, muffled sound came from Norah's room, and fearful that Norah might be ill, Gail stepped close to the wall and raised her hand to tap softly. The old wooden wall was thin, and with her hand upraised she heard the sound more clearly—and was still again, her eyes widening, the upraised hand clenching and dropping to her side without touching the wall.

For now she recognized that sound, the sound of muffled, heart-broken sobbing. Norah, who had been so gay and lively all day, was weeping her heart out in the stillness and frightening loneliness of the night.

Gail's first instinct was to go to Norah, and then she held herself back. There was something almost terrifying about the broken sobbing, the desolate, heart-wrenching grief that had sought the dark shelter of the lonely night, and Gail knew that she dared not intrude on Norah's privacy, even to try to share her grief. For grief from which came such sobbing was not to be shared.

She went to bed at last, to lie staring into the darkness. She was deeply fond of Norah. She was worried for her grief, and she was puzzled. She remembered again that swift exchange between Norah and Greg in the station wagon this afternoon. The way Norah had started gaily, "The man I marry—" and had broken off, her eyes wide and tearful, her red underlip caught between her teeth, and the way Greg had dropped a hand on hers that were suddenly tense in her lap and had said under his breath, "Stiff upper lip, baby—it'll be all right." And again she could see the almost passionate gratitude in Norah's eyes as she found her way back to composure.

And now Norah, hidden in the lonely darkness of her room, wept her heart out. Why? Gail wondered, and knew there was no way she could find out. She dared not invade Norah's private thoughts, even with the best possible intentions.

When Gail came downstairs Sunday morning, the others were before her and breakfast was about to begin. Charles and Greg had attended to the animals, and breakfast was an unaccustomedly leisurely meal. Gail stole a swift glance at Norah, but there were no evidences of last night's lonely sobbing, and her manner was gay and brisk as usual.

After breakfast, when the house was neat and tidy, they all dressed and went to church. To a little country church, freshly painted and standing in a beautiful pine grove on a side road away from the highway. Beside the church there was the cemetery, neat and dignified despite the poverty of the small, shabby stones.

An earnest, ruddy-faced man in neat dark clothes, his big gnarled hands horny with evidence of the hardest toil, preached a sermon that was disarmingly simple, yet filled with the vigor of his deep conviction that he spoke the truth. Afterward there were little groups "visiting," and invitations to "come and have dinner with us" were passed about, and eventually the four members of Gail's family withdrew and returned to the house.

U. S., Britain May Yet
Save Life of Bulgarian

Stay of Execution for Petkov, Agrarian Chief

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Despite the curt Russian rejection of Anglo-American efforts to save the life of Bulgarian political leader Nikola Petkov, there still remains a good chance that future events will bring about a mitigation of his death sentence.

Petkov, leader of the Bulgarian agrarian party, which recently was outlawed for its opposition to the Communist-inspired majority group in the parliament, has a several months stay of execution while his appeal is being considered under Bulgarian law.

The General Assembly of the United Nations meets next month, in ample time to bring pressure to bear against Bulgaria to keep her from carrying out the death sentence against Petkov.

In the meantime, it can be expected that the United States and Britain will maintain unrelenting pressure on the Bulgarian government because of its action.

Russia was able to block direct Anglo-American action in the case only because of the requirement of unanimity of the three great powers in dealing with the situation in Bulgaria through the Allied Control Commission.</

Monday Club Members •Open Fall Meetings

Miss Parks And
Frank Fischer
On Program

Mrs. Melvin Kiger took office as president of Monday club at its first Autumn meeting, Monday evening in the Trustees' room of Memorial hall. Mrs. T. L. Huston, outgoing president, conducted the opening service. Members joined to sing "America the Beautiful" and repeated the pledge of allegiance and salute to the flag. Capitular of the evening's program was "Where there is no vision people perish", from Proverbs 29:5.

Mrs. Kiger appointed Mrs. N. L. Cochran, Mrs. R. R. Bales and Mrs. Donald E. Mitchell to serve on the house committee. Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Mrs. A. P. McCoard and Mrs. Frank Morrison were named as tellers. Mrs. James Moffitt asked members of the music division to gather next Monday at 7:30 p. m. for rehearsal in the Trustees' room.

Mrs. Lincoln S. Mader, Mrs. James H. Bracey, Mrs. James Reichelderfer and Mrs. Kenneth Robbins were welcomed to Monday club as active members.

Mrs. Arthur McCoard, chairman, presented Miss Sophia Parks who read a paper on the selected subject "Pre-School Education". Miss Parks said, "Childhood has been divided into five periods; infancy, nursery age, primary age, school child age and the age of adolescence. The first two years of a child's life are the busiest for growing and learning. Up to this point personality traits are not usually strongly developed; he is imitative and docile. Emotionally the two year old is sensitive and intuitive. He catches emotional tones from our expressions, tone of voice and muscular tensions as we handle him.

The nursery age, varying from two to five or six years is one of rapid change and many vital adjustments. At this time he makes great progress in co-ordination and control. He loves to explore and investigate, and can talk in sentences and argue at length.

"In pre-school education the development of loyalties is one of great importance. The thing we call character is at basis largely a matter of loyalties—to people—to groups and ideals. Science has an important place in the pre-school education. Back of every way of living are particular ways of thinking. One of the most important features of our culture is the scientific way of training.

"Pre-school is not a hand craft period, because the hand itself is not fully developed and ready for training. Crafts should be very simple in sand play, block building, clay modeling, stringing large beads or the simpler forms of cutting and pasting. Drawing and painting with large crayons are excellent guides for early training.

"Play is the very essence of life to a child. It is his chief business, for through it he grows in health, strength and skill of body and mind. Next to home the school is the most important institution for influencing the life of a child.

"The nursery school has entered into the educational family and has much of the value of the kindergarten. Two other fields, those of parent education and mental hygiene have come into vital being. They have brought as major emphasis a realization of the importance of family relationships and a growing insight into the tremendous role that emotions play in the development of personality."

In closing her discussion Miss Parks quoted a paragraph from one of Dr. Frank Schütz's books. Frank Fischer, superintendent of Cincinnati public schools, was introduced by Mrs. McCoard, as guest speaker of the evening. His topic for discussion was, "Cost of Education". Following his informative and instructive address he conducted a round table question and answer period.

Monday Club Members • Open Fall Meetings

Miss Parks And Frank Fischer On Program

Mrs. Melvin Kiger took office as president of Monday club at its first Autumn meeting, Monday evening in the Trustees' room of Memorial hall. Mrs. T. L. Huston, outgoing president, conducted the opening service. Members joined to sing "America the Beautiful" and repeated the pledge of allegiance and salute to the flag. Capital of the evening's program was "Where there is no vision people perish", from Proverbs 29:5.

Mrs. Kiger appointed Mrs. N. L. Cochran, Mrs. R. R. Bales and Mrs. Donald E. Mitchell to serve on the house committee. Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Mrs. A. P. McCoard and Mrs. Frank Morrison were named as tellers. Mrs. James Moffitt asked members of the music division to gather next Monday at 7:30 p. m. for rehearsal in the Trustees' room.

Mrs. Lincoln S. Mader, Mrs. James H. Bracey, Mrs. James Reichelderfer and Mrs. Kenneth Robbins were welcomed into Monday club as active members.

Mrs. Arthur McCoard, chairman, presented Miss Sophia Parks who read a paper on the selected subject "Pre-School Education". Miss Parks said, "childhood has been divided into five periods; infancy, nursery age, primary age, school child age and the age of adolescence. The first two years of a child's life are the busiest for growing and learning. Up to this point personality traits are not usually strongly developed; he is imitative and docile. Emotionally the two year old is sensitive and intuitive. He catches emotional tones from our expressions, tone of voice and muscular tensions as we handle him.

The nursery age, varying from two to five or six years is one of rapid change and many vital adjustments. At this time he makes great progress in co-ordination and control. He loves to explore and investigate, and can talk in sentences and argue at length.

"In pre-school education the development of loyalties is one of great importance. The thing we call character is at basis largely a matter of loyalties—to people—to groups and ideals. Science has an important place in the pre-school education. Back of every way of living are particular ways of thinking. One of the most important features of our culture is the scientific way of training.

"Pre-school is not a hand craft period, because the hand itself is not fully developed and ready for training. Crafts should be very simple in sand play, block building, clay modeling, stringing large beads or the simpler forms of cutting and pasting. Drawing and painting with large crayons are excellent guides for early training.

"Play is the very essence of life to a child. It is his chief business, for through it he grows in health, strength and skill of body and mind. Next to home the school is the most important institution for influencing the life of a child.

"The nursery school has entered into the educational family and has much of the value of the kindergarten. Two other fields, those of parent education and mental hygiene have come into vital being. They have brought as major emphasis a realization of the importance of family relationships and a growing insight into the tremendous role that emotions play in the development of personality."

In closing her discussion Miss Parks quoted a paragraph from one of Dr. Frank Schütz's books. Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville public schools, was introduced by Mrs. McCoard, as guest speaker of the evening. His topic for discussion was, "Cost of Education". Following his informative and instructive address he conducted a round table question and answer period.

3 GREAT BACKS FIND SELVES ON NEW AA TEAMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—They played odd man out over 3,000 miles of All-America football conference and as a result three of the greatest quarterbacks in the game—Glenn Dobbs, Angelo Bertelli and Hunchy Hoernschmeyer—had swapped surroundings today.

In the biggest straight player deal in pro football annals Dobbs went from the Brooklyn Dodgers to the Los Angeles Rams; Bertelli went from the Rams to the Chicago Rockets; and Hoernschmeyer went from the Rockets to the Dodgers.

The question of the moment was: who did what and to whom?

To hear officials of the three teams talk, the collective answer was everything, nothing, everybody and nobody. All three ball clubs were more than satisfied with their new-found talent.

FES PROMISES PLENTY OF WORK FOR BUCKEYES

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—Coach Wes Fesler showed signs today of letting his Ohio State gridgers go full blast in the very near future.

Fesler sprung a brief 20-minute scrimmage on the squad yesterday. The drill was featured by fancy ball carrying of halfbacks Bob Brugge and Jim Clark and fullbacks Ollie Cline and Joe Whisler.

The Buck coaching staff tossed the "fourth string" combination against the nominal first team yesterday, principally to learn how such stalwarts as Cline, Pete Perini, Alex Verdova and a few others are stacking up. All missed Spring practice under Fesler for one reason or another.

The verdict was highly favorable, and the next few days promises to show additional shuffling of positions.

Bones Hamilton, 1946 reserve, moved up to second string right tackle yesterday, replacing Brenton Kirk. Meanwhile, Fesler has been shifting his centers and quarterbacks to get them accustomed to working in any combination.

Dick O'Hanlon, 235-pound first team guard, was a casualty of yesterday's drill. He strained a muscle and will be out two or three days.

CARDS FACING TOUGH ROAD TO CATCH DODGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The stand of the St. Louis Cardinals against the invading eastern National League clubs is not going to be any picnic for the world's champions after they get through with their two-game series with the Phillies which opens tonight.

The three-game series with the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers which starts Thursday night naturally will be the highlight of the stretch drive.

Even if the Red Birds knock off the Dodgers, they will draw no breathers in their three games with the New York Giants and the Boston Braves. Both will be battling to the end because they still have a chance to jump one notch in the final standing of the clubs.

How dangerous the slugging Giants are at any time was demonstrated in their sensational 10-to-8 win over Pittsburgh yesterday.

The New Yorkers, trailing, 8 to 0, going into the eighth inning, scored seven runs in the eighth frame and then won out in the ninth on a two-run homer by Atlanta's Lloyd Gearhart.

If the Dodgers win half of their remaining games, the Cards must take 16 of their 21 to gain a tie. If Vic Lombardi, currently their best pitcher, can win two games on their western trip, the Brooks should get at least a 5-5 break on the trip.

In the American League, the pace-setting New York Yankees continued to dawdle by dropping a 4-to-3 night game to Cleveland, but still lead Boston by 12 games.

Bob Lemon, converted outfielder, won his own game with a single in the eighth inning, although he had to be relieved on the mound in the ninth by Bob Feller, who finished the game in a blaze of glory by retiring three batters in quick succession.

3 GREAT BACKS FIND SELVES ON NEW AA TEAMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—They played odd man out over 3,000 miles of All-America football conference and as a result three of the greatest quarterbacks in the game—Glenn Dobbs, Angelo Bertelli and Hunchy Hoernschemeyer—had swapped surroundings today.

In the biggest straight player deal in pro football annals Dobbs went from the Brooklyn Dodgers to the Los Angeles Rams; Bertelli went from the Rams to the Chicago Rockets; and Hoernschemeyer went from the Rockets to the Dodgers.

The question of the moment was: who did what and to whom?

To hear officials of the three teams talk, the collective answer was everything, nothing, everybody and nobody. All three ball clubs were more than satisfied with their new-found talent.

FES PROMISES PLENTY OF WORK FOR BUCKEYES

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—Coach Wes Fesler showed signs today of letting his Ohio State gridgers go full blast in the very near future.

Fesler sprung a brief 20-minute scrimmage on the squad yesterday. The drill was featured by fancy ball carrying of halfbacks Bob Brugge and Jim Clark and fullbacks Ollie Cline and Joe Whisler.

The Buck coaching staff tossed the "fourth string" combination against the nominal first team yesterday, principally to learn how such stalwarts as Cline, Pete Perini, Alex Verdova and a few others are stacking up. All missed Spring practice under Fesler for one reason or another.

The verdict was highly favorable, and the next few days promises to show additional shuffling of positions.

Bones Hamilton, 1946 reserve, moved up to second string right tackle yesterday, replacing Brenton Kirk. Meanwhile, Fesler has been shifting his centers and quarterbacks to get them accustomed to working in any combination.

Dick O'Hanlon, 235-pound first team guard, was a casualty of yesterday's drill. He strained a muscle and will be out two or three days.

CARDS FACING TOUGH ROAD TO CATCH DODGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The stand of the St. Louis Cardinals against the invading eastern National League clubs is not going to be any picnic for the world's champions after they get through with their two-game series with the Phillies which opens tonight.

The three-game series with the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers which starts Thursday night naturally will be the highlight of the stretch drive.

Even if the Red Birds knock off the Brooks, they will draw no breathers in their three games with the New York Giants and the Boston Braves. Both will be battling to the end because they still have a chance to jump one notch in the final standing of the clubs.

How dangerous the slugging Giants are at any time was demonstrated in their sensational 10-to-8 win over Pittsburgh yesterday.

The New Yorkers, trailing, 8 to 0, going into the eighth inning, scored seven runs in the eighth frame and then won out in the ninth on a two-run homer by Atlanta's Lloyd Gehart.

If the Dodgers win half of their remaining games, the Cards must take 16 of their 21 to gain a tie. If Vic Lombardi, currently their best pitcher, can win two games on their western trip, the Brooks should get at least a 5-5 break on the trip.

In the American League, the pace-setting New York Yankees continued to dawdle by dropping a 4-to-3 night game to Cleveland, but still lead Boston by 12 games.

Bob Lemon, converted outfielder, won his own game with a single in the eighth inning, although he had to be relieved on the mound in the ninth by Bob Feller, who finished the game in a blaze of glory by retiring three batters in quick succession.

Do YOU Own A "Scratching" Dog?

Does your dog constantly scratch, dig, rub, and bite himself—often until his skin is raw and sore? He may be perfectly clean and free, but suffering from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. He is in torment and can't help scratching—unless you try to help him. Try giving him Rex Hunters Dog Powders, once each week, and note the quick improvement.

One owner writes: "If my dog could talk I know he would say thanks for Rex Hunters Dog Powders. He was raw and sore from scratching and just lay around. Now he plays and is full of pep. Ask for Rex Hunters Dog Powders at any good drug store, pet or sport shop. Only 50c. (Economy size box only $1.00). Important: Keep your dog clean and flea free with Rex Hunters Medicated Dog Soap and Fine Oil Disinfectant."

Big engines...long trains mean lower cost to you!

But union leaders want "half-trains"—double crews!

Big locomotives are built to do a big job in the big country which is America—a big job in peacetime as in wartime. They are built to pull long trains.

Long freight trains can handle more goods at less cost—to you—than short trains.

Long trains mean fewer trains—fewer chances for accidents—fewer interruptions to traffic.

But a few railroad union leaders oppose long trains—among their current 44 demands for changes in rules is one limiting the length of freight trains to 57 average cars. Why do they demand this?

For "safety," they say. But is it?

Government figures show definitely that long trains mean greater safety to railroad employees and public alike.

Then, if safety is not the real reason—what is the reason behind this demand?

It is to make more jobs which are not needed—to get more pay! This "made work" would be sheer waste. Think of big, modern locomotives using only half their power.

For this waste, you—the public—would have to pay. Higher costs mean a lower standard of living for everybody. Nobody wants that!

Here's the record...

In the quarter century...1921-1946...

Average length of freight trains has gone up...	39%
Average speed of freight trains has gone up...	39%
The rate of injuries to railroad employees has gone down...	60%
Average wages paid railroad workers have gone up...	84%
Price of railroad materials and supplies has gone up...	58%
Railroad taxes have gone up...	76%

But the average charge by railroads for hauling a ton of freight one mile has gone down... 23%

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Registered U. S. Patent Office

Plum Curculio Plagues Many Fruits

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

THE NAME—Plum Curculio—might imply that this is a pest of the plum only. Actually it is one of the major pests of apple, plum, peach and cherry, as many home gardeners have learned to their sorrow.

The plum curculio sometimes is a serious pest of the peach, and home gardeners should not plant peach trees near plum trees since the latter are a source of curculio.

This insect in the adult stage is a weevil or beetle with a long snout which it uses to secure food by gouging holes through the skin of fruit. The adult or weevil stage is the overwintering form. It is dark brown in color with pale patches on the back and with four humps on the wing covers. Its rough appearance resembles the bark of the tree and when resting upon it this beetle can scarcely be distinguished from the bark.

The weevils become active on fruit trees about the time they blossom and feed upon the newly forming fruit. The females lay small white eggs in crescent shaped punctures in the skin of the fruit, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Pupation is inside the fruit and new adults emerge from the middle of July until early September. They feed until they start hibernation, as illustrated.

Sanitation is one method of control. This entails picking up and destroying fruits which have fallen. Dusting or spraying with arsenate of lead also helps. Cultivating the soil under fruit trees during late spring and early summer destroys the larvae and pupae of the curculio in their cells in the earth. Shaking infested trees early in the morning and catching the beetles on white sheets spread on the ground under the trees is another control measure.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

Polls still show, for instance, the unions are most angry against the new provision "outlawing the closed shop". This provision bans the closed shop in new contracts. Even so, it supports and strengthens union claims to "the union shop", which actually becomes the new closed shop. If a worker must join the union wanted by a majority, after getting work in any shop, then the union has a closed shop—and the new law provides this. The only difference is that the union does not have charge of the hiring. Yet the shop itself is as closed as law can make it.

This provision was not written by the Republicans. It was drafted originally and promoted always by the Democrats and the pro-union people. Opposition to it now by unions could only be due to bad publicity which has caused a misunderstanding of the provisions. Some union leaders contend the old closed shop enables them better to put down recalcitrants in their own ranks by giving the union boss control of hiring for the jobs. Leaders like this have succeeded in convincing the rank and file that prohibition of the closed shop is a device for breaking the unions.

Under fair administration, the true facts will become better known and dispel much current unfavorable propaganda.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

Plum Curculio Plagues Many Fruits

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

THE NAME—Plum Curculio—might imply that this is a pest of the plum only. Actually it is one of the major pests of apple, plum, peach and cherry, as many home gardeners have learned to their sorrow.

The plum curculio sometimes is a serious pest of the peach, and home gardeners should not plant peach trees near plum trees since the latter are a source of curculio.

This insect in the adult stage is a weevil or beetle with a long snout which it uses to secure food by gouging holes through the skin of fruit. The adult or weevil stage is the overwintering form. It is dark brown in color with pale patches on the back and with four humps on the wing covers. Its rough appearance resembles the bark of the tree and when resting upon it this beetle can scarcely be distinguished from the bark.

The weevils become active on fruit trees about the time they blossom and feed upon the newly forming fruit. The females lay small white eggs in crescent shaped punctures in the skin of the fruit, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Pupation is inside the fruit and new adults emerge from the middle of July until early September. They feed until they start hibernation, as illustrated.

Sanitation is one method of control. This entails picking up and destroying fruits which have fallen. Dusting or spraying with arsenate of lead also helps. Cultivating the soil under fruit trees during late spring and early summer destroys the larvae and pupae of the curculio in their cells in the earth. Shaking infested trees early in the morning and catching the beetles on white sheets spread on the ground under the trees is another control measure.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

Polls still show, for instance, the unions are most angry against the new provision "outlawing the closed shop". This provision bans the closed shop in new contracts. Even so, it supports and strengthens union claims to "the union shop", which actually becomes the new closed shop. If a worker must join the union wanted by a majority, after getting work in any shop, then the union has a closed shop—and the new law provides this. The only difference is that the union does not have charge of the hiring. Yet the shop itself is as closed as law can make it.

This provision was not written by the Republicans. It was drafted originally and promoted always by the Democrats and the pro-union people. Opposition to it now by unions could only be due to bad publicity which has caused a misunderstanding of the provisions. Some union leaders contend the old closed shop enables them better to put down recalcitrants in their own ranks by giving the union boss control of hiring for the jobs. Leaders like this have succeeded in convincing the rank and file that prohibition of the closed shop is a device for breaking the unions.

Under fair administration, the true facts will become better known and dispel much current unfavorable propaganda.

For outstanding service above and beyond the call of duty, Patrolman Francis J. Connerney of the Boston, Mass., Police Force will receive the weekly Award of Valor on the "Call the Police!" broadcast which airs over NBC on Tuesday, at 8 p. m., EST. Patrolman Connerney, in 1945, pursued and killed, single-handed, a gunman who murdered the proprietors of a loan company, fatally wounded a policeman and threatened the life of a soldier. In recognition of his heroism, Connerney, at that time, was awarded the Walter Scott Medal for Valor and a Department Medal of Honor.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE WORST CALAMITY
JUST ABOUT the worst calamity that can befall a suit declarer is to find himself out of trumps while the defenders retain one or more of them. That is what puts the greatest danger in having a trump suit only four cards opposite three in the dummy. Even if the hostile trumps are evenly divided, he may find himself in trouble if he has to use too many of his own for ruffing leads by the opposition. The fortunate division of suits and a successful finesse may still prove inadequate luck if his trumps get forced too early and too often.

	East	South	West
1	Pass	2	Pass
2	Pass	2	Pass
3	Pass	4	Pass

As you can see by looking at the East-West hands, spades and hearts were divided evenly, the diamonds as near to evenly as possible and the spade finesse was "right." With all of this good fortune, you would think the 4-Spades could be made, possibly an extra trick, with only one loser each in clubs and diamonds. But wait a minute.

West leading clubs, South ruffed the second one. He led the diamond 2 to the Q and the 5 to the K and A. West returned a third club, ruffed by the spade 6. This left South just one line of play for his contract, which he had to make to get a good score in the duplicate, since he could see that everybody in 5-Diamonds would make it. So he led to the heart A, finessed the spade J, laid down his last spade, the A. Knowing he could not get back to use his diamonds, he had to depend on bringing in the hearts. If the finesse would work, and that suit and spades were divided, he could drop the last hostile trump then with the spade K and run the hearts. But the heart finesse lost to the Q and East returned his fourth club. When dummy ruffed, two trumps remained out, so he was down two.

This hand was in the world's Masters Pairs. North knew South had shown six diamonds and only four spades. He strained for a top when he put the contract in spades instead of diamonds. It was a hazardous and plucky try, but it failed.

Horton Plant Parent Company Reveals Extension

AVCO OUTLINES LATEST PLANS FOR EXPANSION

Company Acquires Convair Interests; Durable Goods To Be Stressed

In connection with its expansion program the Avco Manufacturing Corporation—parent company of the Horton Manufacturing Division in Circleville — announced Tuesday that it will acquire a substantial interest in a new corporation consisting of the non-aviation properties of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation.

It was also announced by Victor Emanuel, chairman of Avco's board of directors, that Avco will dispose of a substantial portion of its stock interest in Convair. Both of these moves, the announcement said, were approved by the directors of both companies at meetings late last week.

In its factory in Circleville the Horton Manufacturing Division produces electrically-controlled automatic garage door operators which may be operated either from the auto, the garage, or inside the home, and also a line of commercial operators for industrial applications. John E. Wells is general manager of the Circleville plant.

"AVCO IS continuing its long-range plan of expansion in the fields of durable consumer goods," Emanuel said. "At the same time, Avco is following a policy of decreasing its investments in aviation activities. This move will enable Convair to concentrate its activities in the field of aircraft manufacture, and give to Avco a greater interest in Convair's general manufacturing plant at Nashville, as well as ACF Brill Motors Company."

He stated under terms of the agreement a new corporation will be organized to acquire the non-aviation interests of Convair, including the Nashville division and a 48 percent interest in Brill and its wholly owned subsidiary, Hall Scott Motor Car company, makers of buses and trolley coaches and industrial truck and marine engines.

Emanuel also announced that the plan to separate Convair's aviation and non-aviation interests has been approved by Floyd B. Odium, president of Atlas Corporation, second largest Convair stockholder. It is expected that Atlas will become the largest stockholder in Convair if the proposal is carried out.

According to tentative plans, the new corporation will have an authorized capitalization of 1,500,000 common shares, of which approximately 800,000 shares will be initially issued. For each four Convair shares held, every Convair stockholder, including Avco, will be given the same opportunity to purchase two shares of the new corporation in exchange for one share of Convair and approximately $18.50 in cash.

AT THE CONSUMMATION of the transaction Avco will own on the same terms and at the same cost per share, such of the offered shares of the new corporation as are not subscribed for by other Convair stockholders. Under the plan Convair will receive approximately 400,000 shares of its presently outstanding stock. If the transaction is approved by Convair stockholders at a special meeting to be called on Nov. 3, Avco will relinquish management control and ultimately will divest itself of all interest in Convair.

The new interest of Avco in the Nashville division, which manufactures ranges and frozen food storage units for Avco's Crosley Division, and motor buses for Brill, further strengthens Avco's position in the household appliance consumer goods industry.

Late last year Avco acquired the assets and businesses of the Crosley Corporation, New Idea, Inc., and American Central Manufacturing Corporation, and now operates these companies.

Avco now is engaged broadly in the manufacture of radios, refrigerators, gas and electric ranges, frozen food storage units, residential and commercial electric door operators, steel kitchen cabinets and sinks, residential and commercial heating units, and other household goods, as well as farm implements and equipment. Avco is also engaged in radio broadcasting and television through its wholly owned subsidiary, Crosley Broadcasting Corporation which owns and operates Radio Station WLW in Cincinnati, and Radio Station WINS in New York.
